ating headquarters on any railroad system in America. This is not my belief only, but its shared by the interests that control the road and its subsidiary interests, and the result will be that Ogden will have the most extensive yards and the biggest locometive and car shops west of Omaha. This was the statement of Vice-President and General Manager of the Oregon Short Line today, atter the meeting of the stockholders of the Ogden Union Depot & Railway company. Mr. Bancroft is entusiastic over the possibilities of Ogden as a central operating point. "Our times run in here from the north and south, from the east and the west, and we have no other point on the entire system from which so many miles of road can be served with big, central shops."

'In other respects the city looks good. Traffic reports that reach me show a gain each year. There is a big agricultural community around the town that each year is producing more, and while there is not the ore haul that attends our operations in the mining camps of Utah, I have the most pronounced assurances that some of those north of Ogden give more than usual promise."

Commencement Exercises at the State Institution in Ogden.

Special to The Tribune.

OGDEN, June 6-The commencement exercises of the State Institution for the Deaf and Blind were held this morning at the school with a most interesting pro-gramme. There were but four graduates, as follows: Janie McClellan Dempsey, Ida. blind, Murray Allen, Mercur, Utah, blind; Margaret Clockworthy, Heber City, Utah, deaf; Joseph Keeley, Salt Lake, deaf.

blind; Margaret Clockworthy, Heber City, Tuh, deaf; Joseph Keeley, Sait Lake, deaf.

An interesting feature of the programme was the transposition into the sign language of several of the addresses and essays. The invocation was by Rev. Samuel Blair. Bert Layne rendered two plano solos of his own composition.

Murray Ailen, the blind boy of Mercur, read an cessay which was a record of his own personal achievements in his efforts for an education. The essay was printed in Braille characters, and was delivered from the manuscript by its author, and was interpreted in the sign language by Superintendent Driggs.

The essay of Janie McClellan, also of the blind department, and who te also an accomplished musician, and rendered two plano solos, was, "How I Got This Much of My Education." It was rendered two plano solos, was, "How I Got This Much of My Education." It was rendered in the same manner, and interpreted by Superintendent Driggs in the sign language. Margaret Clockworthy of the department for the deaf, rectived the story of Evangeline, showing what remarkable powers of articulation may be developed in those who have never heard.

Joseph Keeley, the other graduate in the department for the deaf, rectived the story of Evangeline, showing what remarkable powers of articulation may be developed in those who have never heard.

A most excellent musical programme accompanied the exercises including a violin solo by Thomas Biddulph, a pupil of the department of the blind.

Rev. P. A. Simpkin was present and delivered an address on the good of the schools for the deaf and blind, illustrating the many benefits that had been accomplished by the pursuit of this particular science. The diplomas were presented by Bishop John Watson of the Fifth ward, who is president of the hoard of trustees, and this afternoon a meeting of the board was held to discuss plans for certain additions to the institution. There is an appropriation by the last Legislature of $4000 for this purpose.

some of those north of Ogden give more than usual promise."

Of the improvements contemplated for Ogden, Mr. Bancroft stated that it was not alone the laying out of a new yard and the construction of the Layton cut-off. These are extensive and will call for an outlay as estimated of $37,000. But it is, according to Mr. Bancroft, only the beginning of the work in Ogden.

"While we have good shops here now they are crowded to their full capacity, both locomotive and car shops. We will have to build a bigger machine shop, which, with our present comparatively new shops, will afford adequate facilities for our locomotive repairs. Again, our car repair work is growing. The road has big car shops at Sacramento and at Omaha, but there will have to be big car shops at Ogden. It is the central point on the system and where the traffic of four lines converge, and the shops will have to be at least as large as those at Sacramento."

It is expected that work on the new yards and the Layton cut-off will begin loney is associated with the prosecution in the case.

A number of prebate orders were made and the case of Georgia Crockett is, the Union Pacific was continued until June 10, when a hearing will be given on the motion of the plaintiff that the defendant company must bring into court the records of the inspection of the ear on which the husband of the plaintiff was killed.

It is expected that work on the new yards and the Layton cut-off will begin within a few days Mr. Bancroft could not announce the exact date. The estimates are all in and are now being checked over. The probabilities are that the work will begin within a very short period, perhaps a week or two.

The probabilities are the period, perhaps a week or two.

In the foreneon the election of a board of directors of the Ogden Union Depot & Ballway company was held in the offices of Superintendent Manson. The result brought back two men to the directory who have not served on that board for a number of years. One is Mr. Bancroft, who is now president of the company; the other is Parley L. Williams of Salt Lake, who drew the incorporation papers of the company and was one of its first directors and its present treasurer. The board elected was as follows: W. H. Bancroft, Fred J. Klesel, E. Buckingham, Parley L. Williams, E. C. Manson and Williams J. Shealey. Special to The Tribune OGDEN, June 6-As evidence of the popularity in which Superintendent A. H. ## Judge Miners' Home Report Considered

Western Federation Devotes Day to Discussion of the Committee's

The report of the committee favoring the Judge Miners' Home as official home for the Federation of Miners, was a main topic of discussion at the convention of that body yesterday. Many members favor a place with extensive grounds suited to farming. As a consequence the thing will again come up for settlement, prebably today. Speak in High Terms of Home.

The Judge home is regarded as entirely satisfactory, so far as it is itself concerned. Everyone spoke of it in high terms. There were those, however, who felt that the home should have a farm in connection, and that for this reason the Judge home is far too restricted.

The routine business took up a greater part of the time yesterday. The convention may possibly last the week out, but it looks as though it would be done with by Thursday night.
